The Aarhus School of Architecture is committed to fostering a culture of excellence in architectural education through international collaborations to stay abreast of emerging trends, exchange knowledge, and advance the field of architectural education.

Claus Peder Pedersen has demonstrated exceptional dedication, creativity, and leadership in architectural education and research training within our school. He has substantial experience with international collaborations and possesses a deep understanding of the challenges and opportunities in architectural education. He is committed to promoting excellence, innovation, and inclusivity. We are confident that he will be able to contribute significantly to the EAAE council and the community of architectural education and research at large, and fully support his candidacy.

The Aarhus School of Architecture will provide support for Claus Peder Pedersen's active participation in EAAE's activities, if he is elected. We will ensure the necessary resources and flexibility for him to attend monthly online council meetings and participate in relevant activities such as conferences, seminars, and workshops.

Best regards

Torben Nielsen
Dean
